Traditional fishing and environmental conservation in the Po Delta'

- Description

The Comacchio lagoon is an extraordinary nursery habitat for juveniles of species of both commercial and conservation interest: eels, anchovies, shrimps and mullets

Fishing activities (lagoon aquaculture) in Comacchio lagoon are directly regulated by the Po river Delta Park Managing Authority

Particularly, eel fishing represents an important heritage of an ancient activity of local villagers and is yet carried out with traditional and extensive practices.

The Comacchio lagoon requires a continuous and expensive management of the several locks made by the Po river Delta Park MA: they have to be opened and closed, in order to allow species movement and to supply fresh and sea water for habitat and species conservation.

Traditional fishing and environmental conservation in the Po Delta'

- Results

The revenues generated by fishing is reinvested by the Po Delta Park MA in the environmental conservation and management of the lagoon, thus representing an implicit Payment for Ecosystem Service (PES) scheme which guarantees habitat and fishery conservation.

Moreover, part of the catch is directly sold to local population, thus contributing to local sustainable development and the preservation of cultural values.

This practice involves different stakeholders and beneficiaries. Fishing generates direct and indirect job positions for the local community. The Po river Delta Park Managing Authority achieves the goal of conserving habitat and species, while maintaining traditional fishing practices and supporting tourism in the lagoon.

- Timing 1991 - ongoing

- Budget:

The practice does not need any external financial resource; it is managed by internal staff, both seasonal and permanent. 2 permanent workers are employed for fishing and management activities.

The total revenues generated by fishing activities in 2018 was 185,667 € of which 24.760 (eels – 6.875 kg) directly sold to local population, also representing an identitarian cultural value (sense of place)
